

Hey Chi,

Here's all my stuff for the 425 final. It was a bunch of work but Spencer and I put some hours into it and came up with some pretty decent products for two schmucks with no programming experience.

The Virtual Machine is in a Google Drive that I've shared with you and should be encrypted with your public key. Github wouldn't let me post files that big :( Let me know if there's any problems getting it open and up and running.

The login information for the VM is username: root, password: Password123

That should get you into the directory. Inside are all the files for the final project.

A video guide for the contents, the vulnerabilities, as well as explanations for certain aspects of the project are in a collection of videos. The link to the channel they are posted in is here: <https://www.youtube.com/user/rbrockme>

I'll probably take them all down after you're done with them, so let me know when that happens.

I think that should be everything. Email me if there are any questions or discrepancies. See you next year.
